Feasibility study on the enrolment of refugees and asylum seekers in the Egyptian Universal Health Insurance Scheme (UHIS)

Туре:	Document
Content Type:	Publication
Language:
Sources:
Topics:
Knowledge Products:
Publication Date:	26 Feb 2024

Open seekers in Egypt to assess the feasibility of including them in the universal health insurance scheme (UHIS) launched in 2018.   The refugee and asylum seekers population in any country is highly vulnerable and often lacks any form social protection. As Egypt rolls out phase 1 of the UHIS, the study reviews possibilities of including refugees and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and highlights the importance of fostering social cohesion by providing equal	Open wcms_891768.pdf	This study presents a review of the situation of refugees and asylum
The refugee and asylum seekers population in any country is highly vulnerable and often lacks any form social protection. As Egypt rolls out phase 1 of the UHIS, the study reviews possibilities of including refugees and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		seekers in Egypt to assess the feasibility of including them in the universal vulnerable and often lacks any form social protection. As Egypt rolls out phase 1 of the UHIS, the study reviews possibilities of including refugees and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		health insurance scheme (UHIS) launched in 2018.
vulnerable and often lacks any form social protection. As Egypt rolls out phase 1 of the UHIS, the study reviews possibilities of including refugees and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and phase 1 of the UHIS, the study reviews possibilities of including refugees and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		The refugee and asylum seekers population in any country is highly and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		vulnerable and often lacks any form social protection. As Egypt rolls out opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		phase 1 of the UHIS, the study reviews possibilities of including refugees equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		and asylum seekers in this key social protection scheme. It identified grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		opportunities and challenges. It proposes long-term strategy to ensure policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		equal treatment of refugees and asylum seekers at par with Egyptians and decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		grounded in sound economic policy options. It also presents data for Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		policymakers and international agencies to make well-informed policy the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and		decisions, calling for intensive advocacy efforts with the Government of Egypt and strategic implications for the health programme. It underscores highlights the importance of fostering social cohesion by providing equal		the urgent need for action to ensure that PoC are not left behind and highlights the importance of fostering social cohesion by providing equal anto a review of the aituation of refuse access to healthcare services for all.

Subject Tags: Regions: Countries and territories: