Updated estimates and analysis

The 4th edition of the ILO Monitor: Covid and the world of work, shows how youth are being disproportionately affected by the pandemic, and the substantial and rapid increase in youth unemployment seen since February is affecting young women more than young men. The Monitor calls for urgent, large-scale and targeted policy responses to support youth, including broad-based employment/training guarantee programmes in developed countries, and employment-intensive programmes and guarantees in low- and middle-income economies. It also looks at measures to create a safe environment for returning to work.
