The publication provides an overview of achievements of the ILO Mentawai Project which aims at supporting the recovery of the productive economy in communities affected by the 2010 earthquake and tsunami through supporting recovery of the agriculture and fisheries sectors and supporting strategic planning on basic service provision, including water and sanitation. To compliment the agricultural and fishery sector recovery and enhance the sustainability of livelihoods on the Mentawai Islands (Indonesia), the ILO focused its livelihoods recovery interventions on the development of management and business skills through various training programs, which include trainings on microenterprise development, marketing and postproduction processing. The trainings apply the ILO's relevant training methodologies, such as the ILO "4 in 1" vocational training methodology and the ILO Gender and Entrepreneurship Together (GET Ahead). The brief contains examples and highlights of vocational training programmes implemented within the framework of this project.
