The portfolio of policy guidance notes illustrates the ILO's holistic approach to promoting decent work in the rural economy and brings together the broad range of instruments and tools developed over the past years. The goal of the policy guidance notes is to offer guidance to policymakers, the social partners and development practitioners on ways to effectively address employment- and labour-related issues in the rural context. This guidance note offers critical areas of focus for policy guidance, including some of the priorities that should inform policies promoting decent work opportunities for youth in rural areas.
