The G20 Training Strategy articulates the crucial elements of skills development policy and specifies the essential building blocks of a robust training strategy.

The G20 Training Strategy, developed by the ILO in partnership with other international organizations, in particular OECD and UNESCO, and with employers and workers, extends the outreach of ILO's strategic policy framework on skills and employability. The strategy focuses on building bridges between the world of education and training and the world of work. Drawing on a wide range of international experience, the G20 Training Strategy articulates why a skills strategy is needed, outlines a conceptual framework for such a strategy, and assembles the essential building blocks of a robust training strategy.
