Open	Building an Inclusive, Trustworthy and Sustainable Digital Society
Our Shared Digital Future	Our Shared Digital Futures is a publication shaped by leaders from business, government, academia and civil society who collectively acknowledge the need for shared goals and coordinated action to shape an inclusive, sustainable, digital future. Facilitated by the World Economy Forum's System Initiative on Digital Economy and Society, the paper reviews current status, offers an illustrative list of ongoing initiatives at global and local levels, and identifies developments to watch in at least six shared goals around universal internet access and adoption, digital transformation, digital identity, governance, cyber resilience, and data. It calls on global leaders and organisations to strengthen cooperation and to evolve shared platforms for shaping our digital future. The publication seeks to serve as a conversation starter, as the world celebrates the milestone of more than half of the world's population now connected to the internet, and while less than half of those already online trust that technology will make their lives better.
